GOVERNMENT LAND GRANT OF THREE MILLION ACRES,

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect when approved.

The Republican voters of Bangor are requested to meet in Caucus at City Hall, on FRIDAY EVENING next, at 7 o'clock, for the purpose of nominating three candidates for Representatives to the Legislature, and to choose a City Committee.

For order City Committee.

WM. P. WINGATE, Chairman.

Class Conventions.

Republican Conventions, for the purpose of nominating candidates for Representatives to the Legislature, will be holden as follows. In class composed of Hermon, Carmel, and Levant, Town House, Hermon, on TUESDAY, Sept. 9th, at 2 o'clock P. M. Each town entitled to ten delegates.

They Abandon the Raft.

As we have remarked before, a large proportion of the best men counted upon by the Hichborn party are abandoning them. Hon. Francis E. Webb, whom they made considerable parade in nominating for Senator in Kennebec, has declined to accept. The Hichborn men had industriously reported that he would not only accept, but would decline the Republican nomination for County Attorney. On the contrary he says he supports Gov. Chamberlain and shall accept the regular Republican nomination. Hon. A. B. Farwell, upon learning, that the Hichborn men nominated him for the Legislature, comes out in a letter saying he does not believe in the Hichborn split. E. C. Farrington, Esq., of Fryeburgh declines the Senatorial nomination tendered him by the Hichborn Convention of Oxford County "believing that whatever endangers the success of the Republican party at the coming election will also be fatal to the cause of temperance." A. L. Burbank, their nominee for Clerk of the Courts, also declines for the same reason. In short, the declinations of Hichborn nominees are so painfully frequent that the party must be exceedingly sickly.

Look at Your Ticket.

If the Democracy make any gains at the election on Monday, it will be on account of the Hichborn party making nominations and splitting up the local tickets. Look out for them. The following is the regular Republican ticket for this county. Cut it out for reference:

For Governor,

For Senators:

THOMAS R. KINGSBURY,
CHARLES HOFFUM,
TIMOTHY FULLER.

For County Treasurer,

HORACE J. NICKERSON.

For County Commissioner,

FRANCIS A. REED.

For Representative to the Legislature.

Be careful that every name is correct as to prevent deception.

Above all, see that your vote contains the names of the Republican candidates for the Legislature. Don't be deceived by those who inform you that any other course will be harmless. It is by just such means the Democracy hope to slip enough of their own men to control the Legislature.

Any other than the straight Republican ticket means Democracy. Remember that and govern yourselves accordingly.

Judge Tollman in his speech before the mixed company in City Hall the other night made a very important admission—one which proves all that we ever claim in favor of the Republican party—viz: that it is thoroughly devoted to the temperance cause. He said that certain men in the Republican party, found it necessary to forestall action in favor of Gov. Chamberlain in order to prevent the nomination of a strong temperance man, as they foresaw as early as last winter, that only his nomination could prevent that end. We could not have misunderstood the speaker, for he repeated the idea when speaking of the Republican Convention, saying that Gov. Chamberlain's friends found it necessary to make a great personal pressure there in order to defeat the choice of "a strong temperance and prohibitory candidate" knowing Gov. Chamberlain to be the only one who could do that.

Here we have the chief spokesman of the Hichborn party stating that the Republican party is so strongly devoted to temperance that only the personal reputation of one man could defeat the choice of a man of the most radical temperance views. We take it he speaks the thought of a great majority of his party. And yet Judge Tollman and his friends take great pains to inform us that we are fighting for the rum interest, and that temperance is not a part of the Republican creed. Candidly now, we would like to know which view they intend to assume. You see it would be quite difficult for a party that is thoroughly devoted to the temperance cause to nominate in any case a strong prohibitory candidate," as the Judge expresses it. The fact is, the Hichborn cause is void of real reason and strength the utmost its spokesmen open their mouth. They must make some admissions very damaging to themselves.

It is curious to note with what pertinacity the Democracy claim to befriend the laboring classes, and yet with what hostility they ignore that idea in action. They have just carried California upon a crusade against Chinese laborers, who are now so common in that State. They do it under the hypocritical charge that these men are dangerous to the cause of labor, while well knowing that the country is honeycombed by all immigration, and that the more laborers we import the more we shall demand. A party based upon the principle of caste cannot long stand the test of the judgment of a free people. Its place a century ago.

The Kennebec Journal says, "The nomination by the Hichborn caucus in the city of a democrat for representative, who has voted against Prohibition and its enforcement ever since prohibitory laws were first agitated, looks like anything but a step to promote temperance. Is it a consistency for you?"

WILLIAM PITT FESSENDEN.

After a severe illness of a few days, telegraph brings us the sad tidings that WILLIAM PITT FESSENDEN died yesterday morning at 6:30 o'clock. He was comfortable within an hour of his death and had passed a comfortable night until that hour. Drs. Wood and Porley were in attendance and did everything to relieve his sufferings which otherwise would have been great at the close. His funeral will take place at half past ten o'clock Saturday morning, the 11th inst.

Mr. Fessenden was born in Boscawen, Merrimac county, N. H., Oct. 16, 1806, and was therefore sixty-three years of age. He entered Bowdoin College, and graduated therefrom at the early age of seventeen, entering upon the study of law. In 1827 he was admitted to the bar, and opened an office in Bridgton, Me. Business did not flow in very rapidly upon the young lawyer, and after a two years' trial of country life, he moved to Portland. There he first commenced to take an interest in political affairs. After filling sundry subordinate offices in the city government he was sent to the Legislature, where, in 1831, although the youngest member of that body he rose to distinction both as a debater and a legislator.

Declining a re-election, Mr. Fessenden applied himself closely to his profession, in which he soon rose to a very high rank. In 1839 he was again chosen to the Legislature, from Portland. The House, was large ly Democratic. Mr. Fessenden was placed on the Judiciary Committee, and though a Whig from the first, and always distinguished for uncompromising assertion of his principles, he was made Chairman of the House Committee to revise the statutes of the State. In 1840 he was nominated by acclamation as the Whig candidate for Congress, and was elected, outrunning the strength of his party. In Congress he participated in the current debates, and made speeches on the Loan bill, Bankrupt act, Army Appropriation bill, against the repeal of the bankrupt law, and in reply to Caleb Cushing on Mr. O.'s personal position. He was nominated for reselection in 1848, but declined, preferring to return to the practice of his profession. Meantime he received in the Legislature of that year the votes of the Whig party for a vacant seat in the U. S. Senate. In 1846 he was again nominated, by considerations growing out of the position of parties on the temperance question, to become a candidate for the State Legislature, to which he was chosen, as also in the succeeding year, when he declined to serve further. While a member in 1845 he again received the votes of the Whigs of the Legislature for a seat in the U. S. Senate. From 1845 to 1852 Mr. Fessenden was in private life, devoting himself to his profession with a constantly extending practice and reputation. During this period he was associated with Daniel Webster in an important case before the Supreme Court of Washington. Mr. Fessenden's argument on that occasion was remarkable for its logical force and legal acuteness, and won the highest admiration from the most fastidious judges. Subsequently in the House, and that branch fail in concern in the election by four votes; a majority of the whole number elected to the Legislature for the term for which he was elected. The same House, though opposed to Mr. Fessenden in politics, associated him with Hon. Reed Williams in negotiating the increase of the large body of wild lands in Massachusetts lying in Maine, which was successfully accomplished. In the succeeding year (1854) Mr. Fessenden was again a member of the Legislature, which was Democratic in both branches. The Kansas-Nebraska question operating as a disturbing element, Mr. Fessenden was now chosen by both branches on the first ballot to the vacancy in the U. S. Senate, occasioned by the resignation of Hon. James W. Bradbury, on the 4th of March, 1854, and on the night of March 3d following, at which time the famous Kansas-Nebraska Bill was passed, delivered one of the most effective speeches made during the session. This effort established his reputation at once as one of the ablest members of the Senate.

Mr. Fessenden was re-elected to the United States Senate in 1859, and before the expiration of his term, was appointed, by the President to serve in the Cabinet as Secretary of the Treasury, which position he held for portions of the years 1864-5, with great satisfaction. Finding the duties of that office too arduous for his health, he resigned, to accept another re-election to the Senate. His career in the Senate is too well known to need further detailing. His record is a part of our history, and his country has been honored in honoring him. However his own friends may have differed with him upon some occasions, there are none to impeach the integrity of his action, or to hold in kindly remembrance, not merely by his hosts of personal friends, but by his State which he has so ably and by his country which he has so long served.

JOHN A. RAWLINS.

The country has heard with the deepest regret the death of Gen. John A. Rawlins, Secretary of War, which occurred at Washington Monday afternoon. His health has been feeble for many years; those who know him well, during the war, fondly expected him to live through the war, especially as, his was subject to the arduous duties of Chief of Staff to Gen. Grant. It is probable, however, that his labors then only somewhat hastened the development of the seeds of disease which had long been implanted in his constitution.

The Boston Journal gives the following sketch of his character and services:

Rawlins, born in Jo Daviess county, Illinois, February 13th 1831, was a young lawyer at Galena when the war broke out, and a thrilling speech which he made in favor of the Union, and began a close friendship between the two men, which ended only with the last, as is evinced by the following recent noble letter of Secretary Grant, dictated to the bedside of his dying friend:

In the Mississippi campaign Rawlins was Grant's Chief of Staff, and is certified to by his commanding him, at the same time, that his counsels had been of the most valuable and eventful service. He was transferred to the East, with greater responsibilities, in the Chattanooga campaign, like Rawlins, along with Grant. He has the confidence of the President, that it Rawlins had ceased to be a member of acquiescing to half-di- rations of the war, friendship of Gen. Schofield Department, the latter was appointed successor, and this commission. Though one of the young- the Cabinet, he was one of the most laborious and effi- not only a zealous and able- artment, with which he was ly conversant, but he was trusted adviser to the Presi- dent. Rawlins was a native of Williams Pitt Fessenden, and graduated at an early age of seventeen, entering upon the study of law. In 1827 he was admitted to the bar, and opened an office in Bridgton, Me. Business did not flow in very rapidly upon the young lawyer, and after a two years' trial of country life, he moved to Portland. There he first commenced to take an interest in political affairs. Mr. Fessenden's argument on that occasion was remarkable for its logical force and legal acuteness, and won the highest admiration from the most fastidious judges. Subsequently in the period (in 1860) Mr. Fessenden was elected to Congress, but his seat was given to his competitor through an error in the returns, Mr. Fessenden declined to contest the case before Congress, from an unwillingness to serve in that body, which he had so decisively expressed in advance to the Conventions of the Whig and Free Soil parties, which, against his wishes, had insisted upon nominating him. He was elected a member of the National Convention which nominated General Harrison for the Presidency in 1840; was a member of the convention of 1848 which nominated Gen. Taylor, to which he supported the claims of Mr. Webster; and a member of the convention of 1852, which nominated General Scott.

1853 he was again returned as member of the State Legislature from Portland, and was chosen by one branch (the Senate) U. S. Senator. The Democrats had a majority in the House, and that branch fail in concern in the election by four votes; a majority of the whole number elected to the Legislature for the term for which he was elected. We commend to the Republicans of Maine who "thank God, that the past is dead" a perusal of the following paragraph from the N. Y. Tribune:

Will you take warning, Republicans of [illegible] State, that the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment is not yet secure? You have to contend against [illegible] stupidity and [illegible] slumber [illegible] fool's paradise in [illegible] reasons [illegible] ages [illegible] assuming [illegible] concessions [illegible] ification yet virtually conceded [illegible] not conceded—[illegible] to be fought to the end. Nation has this week a new scandal, that the story which Lady Byron unconditionally believed, was of her husband's reckless [illegible] The sudden announcement of her mother's death, or the dark intimations which it was in the habit of playing off upon friends, and imbued upon the public. The conjecture is ingenious and affords a better explanation of all the circumstances than any other theory that has been offered.

The Knox County correspondent of the Portland Advertiser says:

"Hichborn doesn't run his machine in this county. The temperance men don't think the best way to help forward the cause of temperance, is by sustaining rather than by attempting to break up the Republican party."

An Iowa paper says that the Democratic candidate for Governor of that State, may be considered as a pretty fair specimen of the whale that Jonah swallowed.

The Vote of Maine.—The following figures relating to the vote in this State in years past will be interesting in view of the approaching State election: The average vote of Maine since 1854—the date of organization of the Republican party—is 107,01[illegible]. The average Republican vote (not counting scattering) is 69,010; average Democratic (including the old Whig votes of 1854, 1856, 1858 and 1860,) 40,887; average Republican majority, 13,128.

The vote was last year 131,782, the largest ever thrown. It was the smallest in 1863, 81,713. In 1860 it was 124,155; in 1866, 119,814; 1868, 119,42. In 1866, when Gov. Chamberlain was first nominated, the vote was 99,687; Pillsbury, 71,947; Chamberlain's majority, 27,000—the largest ever given. The vote in 1867 was: Chamberlain, 57,832, Pillsbury, 46,000; Chamberlain's majority, 11,842. In 1865, Chamberlain, 75,523; Pillsbury, 56,207; Chamberlain's majority, 19,316. Counting the scattering against him 52, the majority was 19,264.

Senator Sherman on Political Issues.—Senator Sherman opened the political campaign in Clark County, Ohio, Friday. In his speech he discussed the platform of Rosecrans and Pendleton. He asserted that the Democratic party was the cause of the enormous interest on the public debt by opposing the war and casting doubts on the success of the national Government, also that the Democratic party prevented the reduction of the rate of interest by casting doubt upon the public faith, and preventing the funding of the debt at a lower rate of interest. Alluding to the platform of the Democratic party, denouncing the tax on tea, coffee, sugar and salt, a measure for the benefit of New England, he said he never knew before that the articles enumerated were New England products. He supposed sugar, tea and coffee to be chiefly imported, and that salt was not a New England product. The reference to New England in the platform, he said, shows a spirit of petty sectional strife.

The New York Tribune gives its opinion against a fusion party in the following:

The National Temperance Convention at Cincinnati, to be remembered rather for its intentions than its wise performances. We doubt whether the formation of a temperance party in opposition to the existing political parties now in power is either timely or practicable, but we cannot but regret that the wise counsels which were urged at the Convention did not prevail.

Personal and Personal.

Senator G. Harris, the rebel, is now Senator from Tennessee.

Ex-Senator B. Gratz Brown is suggested for the next Governor of Missouri.

The Pittsburg Post says war is waged against Belmont, because he is in favor of Pendleton.

A private letter from Paris says Hon James W. Grimes of Iowa has resigned his seat in the United States Senate, to take effect on the 1st of October next. Poor health is the cause.

The New Orleans Times regrets to find that any one is opposed to the election of Mr. Johnson to the Senate, calling a failure to elect him a "defeat of the just expectations of the people."

Mr. J. M. Hanna, who was few months since Mr. Pollard's assistant in the fire-eating Southern Opinion, is now writing for the Richmond State Journal, one of the most "radical" of papers.

Among the prominent Republicans now on the stump in Pennsylvania are Senator Morton, Hon. John A. Bingham, Governor Geary, Senator Scott and Hon. W. D. Kelley. The campaign is going on auspiciously for the Republicans.

Some Northern Democrats must feel quiet when they hear such a fire-eater as the Memphis Avalanche crying out: "For God's sake, and the sake of decency, let the poor negro alone, for he is citizen with all the rights of a freeman, his share of them, and is irrevocably free."

The Knoxville Press (Democratic) calls loudly for the suppression of the negro lynching Ku-Klux in Tennessee. With reference to the politics of the butchers, it says: "We don't know, and we don't care. The politics of thieves and cut-throats don't concern us. We propose that the scoundrels be caught and hung. Their politics can be ascertained afterward if it be important."

General N. B. Forrest, once styled "Butcher" who is now superintending the construction of the Selma, Marion, and Memphis Railroad, of which he is President, has become so reconciled to the "Yankee" that he is now trying to introduce a Yankee colony to settle on lands owned on both sides of the line, not far from Grenada, Miss., on the line of his railroad.

The following sentence from Gen. Rosecrans' letter is thought to fit his successor, George H. Pendleton: "Should Democrats who is mental organization or temperament cannot permit them to recognize existing facts, or to conform their action to great popular changes, let them, for the public good, abdicate leadership, and let the energies of the people free to work out the harmony of life and progress."

The Boston Traveller says there is considerable stir and the nucleus of a Democratic party in that city. The Advertiser denounces its intensely disgusted at the impudence of their Irish allies, who are the late ward caucuses nominated many gentlemen of their own nationality for office. The situation is further complicated by an intrigue against the renomination of Mayor Shurtleff.

STABLE WINDOWS. Diseases of the eye in horses may, in many cases, be traced to the wretched custom of confining animals in dark stables. Any one who has been for some time in a dark room, knows what the effect is of coming suddenly out into the sunlight. The horse is no less sensitive. Bring him suddenly out, and you notice that he stumbles against almost everything that is in his way, and steps with the utmost uncertainty. This blundering is not the fault of the poor beast, but of his owner. The eye must gradually become accustomed to the change. The effect of the common mode of treatment cannot fail eventually to be disastrous to the eyesight. The detention in dark stables must have a deleterious influence upon the optic nerve by weakening it. The retina foslept false. Objects are reflected upon a dull surface and they are not clearly discerned. The master wonders what is the matter; his horse used to be sure-footed, but now he stumbles entirely too frequently for his credit in the market. He used to be very gentle and could be warranted as altogether safe, but now he shies so abominably that several times he has very nearly upset the carriage, and the ladies of the house are afraid of him. He is losing character and rapidly getting a bad name, when the poor brute is as deserving of confidence as ever. The animal would in fact be safer with absolute blindness than the imperfect vision, for it is constantly alarmed by objects which are seen indistinctly, whereas in the former case it trusts entirely to the bridle. Farmers will do well to make a note, and let their horses have light.—Journal of the Farm.

WOOD ASHES. According to Johnston's 'Agricultural Chemistry,' wood ashes consists of silica, sand, clay, oxide of iron, oxide manganese, lime, magnesia, potash, soda, sulphuric acid, phosphoric acid, chlorine, and carbonic acid.

These constituents are essential to the growth of vegetation, and if they do not abound in the soil, they must be supplied by artificial means. The potash and other ingredients contained in wood ashes, are in a progressed state, having already been in organic life, and therefore not only a perfect food for plants to that extent they may require these constituents, but the potash has a powerful chemical action on the soil, decomposing all organic substances, and rendering many inorganic substances soluble. Even the silicates, the chief component of sand, are so changed in condition that they are ready to give strength to the outer coating of straw, corn stalks and the like.

Wood ashes are exceedingly valuable for sandy soils, and are beneficial for all soils; are especially valuable in their application to potatoes, carrots, corn, peas, beans, clover, and the grasses generally.

As a top-dressing to grass lands it roots out the moss and promotes the growth of white clover. Upon red clover it is better to be mixed with one-fourth of its weight of gypsum.

Many persons in the country, who cultivate more or less land, have been in the habit of selling ashes at a very small price. Farmers and gardeners had better collect all the ashes they can, until they cost them over fifty cents a bushel.

MIXTURE TO BLEACH COTTON. For five pounds of cloth, take one pound of chloride of lime; dissolve the lime in warm, soft water, sufficient to wet the cloth thoroughly without crowding; turn the cloth often with the handle and raise it up to give air, so all parts may be exposed. Continue this process about the fourth of an hour, then wring out and rinse thoroughly two or three times, and when dry you will find your cloth whiter than two weeks bleaching on the grass or bushes would make it, and unless the boots in your community are bold enough to come to your clothes line in broad daylight you need not fear any depredation from them. I have adopted the above for several years, and find it very good indeed. The lime does not injure the cloth at all.—Julia A. Miller, in Northern Farmer.

The very common, slipshod and loose method of cultivating the soil is sure to result in ... as it ought to do. The best soil is ... of neglect and ill treatment, and is sure to revenge itself upon those who are ... of them. Hence hardly a fourth ... a crop ... indeed from soil which ... and if properly used would, yield ... abundant harvest.
